

Using Storytelling in the Classroom

© Richard Martin 2010

Methodology

As the practical methodology we try out in a workshop always depends on the interests and requirements of the participants, as well as the time available, it is not possible to give exact details of the activities which will be covered in any particular workshop.

However, this list includes most of the exercises in most workshops and may help you to remember what we actually did.

- Last line race – Old Woman and her Pig
- Hot seat discussion – Mr Fox
- Beth Gellert – writing storybook, Language Checklist
- Cut-up story with Candle in the Barn
- Clever Farmer worksheet
- Story cards: use three as beginning, middle and end of story
- Participation storytelling – Strongest of Them All
- Nasruddin's Shirt (stopping the story)
- The Dragon (guided partner storytelling / adjectives)
- Partner re-writing of Death and the Gardener (the King's tale)
- Monkey Misery – vocabulary collection
- Group story creation WHO – WHERE – WHAT – WHY
- Adjective collection: Black Prince groups: street, garden, princess, magician
- Small group conversation: My worst illness
 - vocabulary collection / synonyms
 - questions to the teacher about his illness – only yes/no answers
 - folk tale where king is sick / Grandfather Death / Death & Gardener / Death in Nut
 - writing a picture story
 - develop into health awareness / maths - statistics

Many of the stories on my website have teaching suggestions.